

MEME AND MEANING

ADVANCING ART

What is art? Is it limited to paintings and murals, or is it a more expansive, higher principle? Is strong, concise leadership in times of struggle art? Is pulling the hard truths out of people an art? Art is that which is not perfect, but sincere. Art is that which reveals what the human mind can do when it goes both through and beyond doubt, resistance, and fear. Art is that which causes greater connection between people and shows them a higher, more ideal reality in which they feel both the severity and beauty of the human condition. Below are some reflective questions to consider your art, what's holding it back, and what could make it better.

- What kind of art really moves you like no other?
 - Why do you think that is?
- What is your art? What do you do that is, or has the potential to be remarkable, honest, and moving?
- In what ways could your art be improved?
 - What are the main skills that needed to be developed in order to take your art to the next level?
 - What are 5 tangible actions you can take to improve these skills?
- Which aspects of your psychology hold you back from creating better, more beautiful and sincere art?
 - Which of these is the biggest problem for you in the creative process?
 - What are 5 tangible actions you can take to address these blocks?
 - Which one are you going to do first and when?
